

2026-2027 NOMINAL ROLL

GOVERNMENT OF TUVALU

PRESENTED AS PART OF THE 2026-2027 NATIONAL BUDGET

BY

HON. PANAPASI NELESONE

DEPUTY PRIME MINISTER AND MINISTER OF FINANCE AND ECONOMIC DEVELOPMENT

1. Introduction

The Nominal Roll provides a completed record of established civil service positions across all ministries and departments. Prepared in accordance with the Tuvalu Government Financial Instructions, the Nominal Roll underpins the annual budget process by enabling the Planning, Budget, and Aid Coordination Department to estimate personal emolument expenditure for the forthcoming financial year. It also functions as an important mechanism for monitoring workforce trends, vacancy level, and supporting strategic workforce planning.

The 2026/2027 Nominal Roll reflects the Government's commitment to public service delivery. As Tuvalu continues to face increasing development pressures, including climate change adaptation, infrastructure demands, healthcare needs, and economic transformation, the role of the public service remains central to achieving national development priorities including the 21 priorities and national outcomes from Tuvalu's National Strategy for Sustainable Development called 'Te Kete' 2020 -2030. Consequently, understanding workforce composition and staffing trends is essential for ensuring that government ministries are adequately resourced to deliver effective services to the people of Tuvalu.

This analysis examines the trends in established civil service positions between fiscal year 2023 and 2026/2027, highlighting changes in staffing distribution across ministries and identifying areas of growth, stability, and restructuring. Particular attention is given to the expansion of key service delivery ministries including health, education, infrastructure, and finance, as well as the broader implications of workforce growth on fiscal sustainability and public sector efficiency. The analysis also considers the persistent challenge of vacancies within the civil service and the importance of strategic workforce planning in addressing recruitment and retention issues.

The Nominal Roll overall, not only reflects staffing numbers, but also provides insight into the Governments' emerging priorities, policy reforms, and long-term vision for national development. Through careful workforce planning and targeted resource allocation, the Government of Tuvalu continues to strengthen its public service delivery to better respond to emerging challenges and support sustainable development outcomes.

2. Background

2.1 Tuvalu's Civil Service Establishment, Fiscal Year 2023 to 2026/2027.

Tuvalu's civil service establishment from 2023 to the projected 2026/2027 financial year reflects a growing public sector, responding to the need to strengthen service delivery and introduction of new services. Over this period, total established positions increased from 1,342 in 2023 to 1,374 in 2026/2027, representing a net growth of 32 positions. For the 2026/2027 fiscal year, a total of 14 new positions were endorsed by cabinet, alongside 2 positions for the Tuvalu Mission to Canberra, Australia, which were established and filled within the first half of the fiscal year 2025/2026. These were all incorporated into the civil list and it brings the total to 16 new posts.

Graph 2.2: Percentage of Filled and Vacant Positions

Tuvalu’s civil service vacancies affect service delivery most visibly in larger ministries that hold the bulk of established positions. In the Education and Health sectors, the vacancy ratios are also significant, but the impact is intensified because these ministries hold the largest share of civil service positions. Education requires qualified teachers, and many permanent posts remain vacant and are temporarily covered by unqualified teachers. Health vacancies are concentrated among doctors, registered nurses and paramedics, and these posts are left unfilled until qualified professionals are available and recruited. Together, these sectors show that the highest vacancy levels occur where specialized qualifications are essential, and the ratios differ because education and health carry far more positions overall compared to other sectors.

The Ministry of Home Affairs, Climate Change and Environment records the largest number of vacant positions within its Waste Management Department, which includes waste management officers, waste collectors, and mechanical staff responsible for maintaining equipment and machinery. The Marine Department under the Ministry of Transportation, Energy, Communication and Innovation also faces vacancies in port services and passenger vessels, particularly among crew members and qualified engineers. The challenge here is the shortage of qualified staff on passenger vessels, and the ministry has been actively working to address these shortages to strengthen maritime operations and safety oversight.

In smaller but specialised sectors, the legal sector including the Office of the People’s Lawyer and the Office of the Attorney General records some of the highest vacancy ratios because these positions are only required by qualified lawyers. The government’s small pool of legal professionals makes it difficult to fill these positions, and unlike other ministries, they cannot be staffed by interim or unqualified personnel. The same applies to the Judiciary, where vacancies remain until properly trained judges and legal officers are available. This explains why the ratios are high despite the relatively smaller number of positions compared to larger ministries.

Graph 3.2: Number and types of Casual Workers

Tuvalu’s casual workforce plays an important role in supplementing permanent staff across key operational areas. The largest share is concentrated in port operations through stevedores, reflecting the centrality of maritime services to the public. Housing and public works also rely heavily on casual labour to support construction and infrastructure maintenance, while smaller groups such as special constables, securities, TPCC casuals, and disaster response workers provide targeted support in law enforcement, utilities, and emergency preparedness. This distribution shows that casual employment is used strategically to provide flexibility, fill immediate service gaps, and sustain essential functions where permanent recruitment is limited.

Tuvalu's donor funded workforce is spread across several key sectors, each supported by external financing to strengthen employment capacity. The Climate Change sector hosts the largest number of project officers under projects such as Readiness 4, MCAP, IWRM, SWRP, and CIEW, reflecting the country's reliance on climate resilience programs. The Ministry of Finance and Economic Development employs staff for projects like coconut rehabilitation and GOV4res, while the Health sector supports health initiatives including non-communicable diseases awareness programs. The Agriculture sector contributes through food and water security projects, and the Education sector hosts officers for child wellbeing and TESP IV. Operational areas such as Aviation and Labour rely on donor funded casual workers and support officers, while the Disaster Management sector focuses more on disaster resilience support initiatives. Likewise, for business support programs include the promotion of business enterprise. Altogether, these sectors illustrate how donor funded staffing complements Tuvalu’s civil service by filling critical gaps with specialized expertise.

4. Employment Data

4.1 Retirement Data

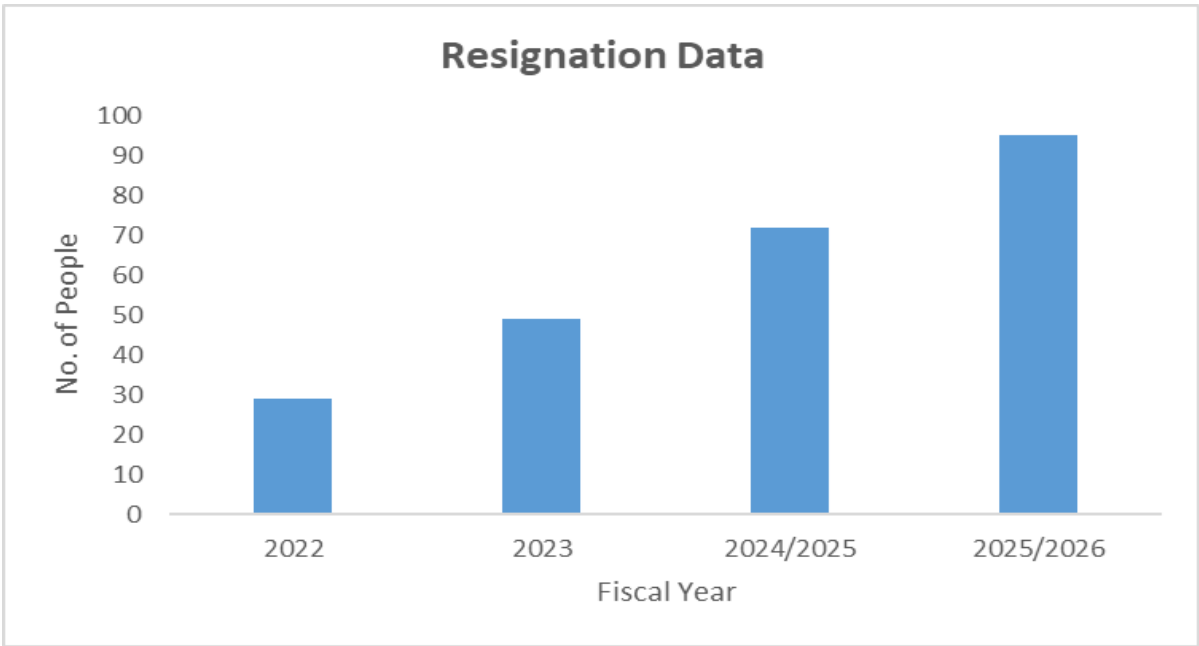

Graph 4.1: Number of Retired Workers, Fiscal Years 2022 -2025/2026

The retirement data shows that Tuvalu recorded a total of 79 retirements across the four fiscal years from 2022 to 2025/2026. The numbers vary year by year, with retirements peaking in 2023 before declining steadily through 2024/2025 and 2025/2026. This pattern suggests that while retirements remain a consistent feature of workforce turnover, the overall trend has been downward in recent years. The volume of retirements can be considered significant in aggregate, as it represents a consistent stream of staff leaving the service, though the yearly amounts are relatively modest when viewed individually.

4.2 Resignation Data

Graph 4.2: Number of Resigned Workers, Fiscal Years 2022 -2025/2026

The resignation data shows that Tuvalu recorded a total of 245 resignations across the four fiscal years from 2022 to 2025/2026. The numbers rose steadily year by year, starting at a lower level and increasing to the highest count in 2025/2026. This upward trajectory indicates that resignations have become a significant component of workforce turnover, with the later years contributing the largest share to the overall total. The cumulative effect of workforce turnover is reducing efficiency and reliability in delivering public services, highlighting the need for stronger retention and workforce stabilization measures to safeguard essential functions. While the annual figures vary, the cumulative amount underscores the importance of tracking resignations to understand overall staffing dynamics.
